If there are 2 or more documents opened in the program, you have to indicate which texts should be checked. After pressing the OK button, the program will start analyzing the texts.

Select documents to check
C:\Users\Bartosz\Desktop\Copyright - Wikipedia.docx
C:\Users\Bartosz\Desktop\Plagiarism - Wikipedia.pdf
C:\Users\Bartosz\Desktop\report.pdf

The program indicates places in the text which can be treated as plagiarism of someone's text. Each such a fragment is highlighted in red color. For text up to 5,000 sentences, selection is done while the program is running. For text over 5,000 sentences, in order to speed up the application, found sentences will be underlined at the very end of the analysis process.

On the right side of the program there is a table with results. It consists of columns: PLAGIARIZED TEXT, LINK TO PLAGIARISM and 'copy' icon. When hovering over T icon, under the PLAGIARIZED TEXT colum, the sentence found in the google.com search engine will be displayed. Column LINK TO PLAGIARISM contains the website address for the found sentence. After clicking the button with 'copy' icon, website address will be copied to the Windows system clipboard. After double-clicking the row of the results table, a browser will be launched with the address from the LINK TO PLAGIARISM column.

3. FINISHING CHECKING THE TEXT

After completing the program, a message will be displayed about the result of the antiplagiarism and it will indicate how many percent of the sentences were found in the search engine google.com. Even non-plagiarized text may contain singlel sentences in the google.com search engine. It can be assumed that a result of about 40% for a longer text means that the text is plagiarized.
